Annual Conference Track Meet Will Be Held Saturday

Blue and White Team Seeks To Keep Crown Won In Past Years

STATE CONTEST TO BE AT PORTER FIELD

Vermont and Norwich Will Bring Well-Balanced Aggregations

Middlebury's varsity track team will climax its 1934 season with the annual Green Mountain conference meet against Norwich and Vermont Saturday at Porter field. The meet promises the keenest competition in recent years and several records are expected to topple.

Although Coach Brown's men have won the triangular meet easily for the past several years, the opposition seems to be stronger this season. Both Norwich and Vermont have a number of individual stars who seem certain to place in their events.

The outcome of the 100-yard dash in Saturday's classic rests on the performance of Hoxie and Cady for Middlebury, R. Delfausse and Robbins of Vermont, and Rowley of Norwich. Rowley, last year's state champion, raced to a blanket finish with Hoxie and Delfausse at the Eastern Intercollegiates held this month. Hoxie has turned in times of 9.9 seconds and Delfausse has made the century in 9.7 seconds. In the 220-yard dash Delfausse is most certain of first place. He took this event last Saturday against Montreal in the state record-breaking time of 21. 9 seconds. Robbins, another Vermont sprinter, took fourth in this event at Worcester. Hoxie Prochazka, Jocelyn, Foster and Gage will carry Middlebury's hopes while Norwich will be represented by Rowley, Barter and Soule.

The odds in the 440 favor Vermont's Joe Delfausse who took second in the

Armas Erkkila To Study In Germany

Will Be Exchange Student; Miss Irmgard Forster Is To Come to Middlebury

Armas V. Erkkila '34 has been selected as an exchange student to Germany for the 1934-35 college session.

Miss Irmgard Forster of Berlin will come to Middlebury.

This exchange has been arranged through the institute of international education in New York City. Free board, room and tuition are offered to a graduate student for the session beginning November 1 and extending to August 1, 1935.

Erkkila has majored in chemistry and expects to continue his studies in that field. He has not been given a definite assignment for a German university but it is expected that he will attend the University of Berlin.

Miss Forster is a graduate of the Friedrich Wilhelm university in Berlin. While in college she majored in French, English, and geography. She plans to teach after completing her graduate work.

Fritz Tiller, instructor in German last year, and Erich Labouvie came here three years ago under this arrangement Mr. Tiller is studying at Yale and Mr. Labouvie is an instructor at Bates.

"M" Club to Be Headed by Richard L. Williams '35

Richard L. Williams '35 was elected president of the "M" club at a meeting of that body held in Hepburn social hall last evening. Elwood A. Hoxie '36 was chosen for the position of secretary-treasurer.

There followed a discussion of the plan of having the organization act as a body to supervise training for rathletes.

Williams earned his letter in football, served on the junior prom committee, and is a member of Blue Key society. He is co-captain of the football team for next year and is out for baseball and track. He is Delta Upsilon.

Hoxie won his letter in both football and track and tied for second place in the recent all-campus decathlon. He won the Hazeltine-Klevenow cup and is Blue Key, dean's list, and DKE.

Rushing Rules Are Adopted By Council

Last Year's Rules Altered By Changing the Days of Evening Visiting Period

Rushing rules for the 1934-35 season were adopted by the interfraternity council last week. The rules for next year are the same as those used during the past season with one exception.

The only change comes in the shifting of the days in which fraternity men may visit freshmen in the evenings. Last year's rules provided that freshmen might be visited Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday, and Sunday from

Trustees Resolve To Adopt Drastic Change Of Policy

All Students Must Deposit Certain Sum Prior to First Classes

ALTERATION TO BE EFFECTED IN FALL

Action Caused by Number Of Persons Deficient In Payments

Beginning with the fall of 1934 the administration of Middlebury college will adopt a drastic change in policy toward the payment of student bills.

At a recent meeting the trustees of the college passed the following resolution:

"It will be required of all freshmen to deposit at least $100.00 on their accounts, and all students in the senior, junior, and sophomore classes will be required to take care of all arrears and make a deposit of at least $50.00 on the new account before they are admitted to classes. All accounts must be paid or satisfactorily arranged for within six weeks of the opening of each semester."

The action of the trustees was brought on by the present financial conditions which have greatly increased the number of students who are deficient in payments to the college.

Margery Hanchett Elected President of Spanish Club

Margery T. Hanchett '35 has been elected president of the Spanish club for 1934-35. The other officers will be Louise H. Fulton '35, secretary, and Paul A. Myers '37, treasurer.

Miss Hanchett is literary editor of the 1934 Kaleidoscope, assistant advertising manager of the Saxonian, manager of the women's glee club, and a member of the English, mountain, and dramatic clubs. She was recently tapped to Mortar Board.

Miss Fulton served on the junior week program committee. She belongs to the women's glee club, the French, Spanish, and mountain clubs. She has played W. A. A. hockey, volleyball, and baseball.

Myers is on the dean's list. He was a member of the Spanish carnival committee, and is on the CAMPUS news staff.

Springstead and Edgerton to Direct Activities of Annual Winter Holiday Program

J. Reginald Springstead '36 and Jean M. Edgerton '36 have been appointed chairman and associate chairman, respectively, of the 1935 winter carnival which will be held next February 15, 16, and 17.

At a meeting of the governing board of the mountain club yesterday morning after chapel these appointments were announced. Paul W. Foster '37 was elected treasurer of the carnival.

ANNUAL CLASS DAY WILL BE SATURDAY

Bill Dehey's Orchestra Is Engaged to Play for Senior Ball

Plans have been completed for the 1934 senior week which will begin Friday, June 8 and continue until Monday, June 11. This will be the one hundredth and thirty-fourth commencement of the college.

Sutton Vane's "Outward Bound", the junior week play, will be repeated Friday and Saturday nights as part of the senior week program.

The traditional class day exercises will be held on the campus Saturday morning. These include the tree planting and the reading of the class history, will, and prophecy.

There will be a trustee's meeting in the treasurer's office Saturday morning and a meeting of the alumni council in Old Chapel at noon. The associated alumni and the alumnae association will hold meetings in the afternoon following a luncheon at Battell cottage.

The program for the afternoon also includes a baseball game with St. Michael's. Two Performances Of Play Scheduled

Drama "Outward Bound" to Be Given June 8 and 9 As Part of Senior Week

"Outward Bound" by Sutton Vane will be presented at the playhouse June 8 and 9 as a part of the senior week program. The curtain is at 8:15 on the first evening and on the second night it is scheduled for 8:45.

The play is concerned with a group of people on board ship and gives an imaginative treatment of the life of the soul after death. The set, designed by Prof. V. Spencer Goodreds, director of the production, portrays the smoking room of a modern steamer.

All seats for both presentations will be reserved. The price of admission for those holding dramatic activities tickets will be thirty-five cents and may be obtained at the playhouse any afternoon of the week of June 3. Tickets for general admission will be priced at seventy-five cents. Alumni tickets may be purchased at the office of Edgar J. Wiley, director of admissions and personnel. It is requested that those who have already seen the play do not plan to see it during senior week, since it is expected that a large number of alumni and friends will wish to see it at that time.

A GOOD SIGN

In the student questionaire that was recently conducted by the CAMPUS, each Middlebury undergraduate was requested to answer the question, "To the beliefs of what political party do you most closely subscribe?" Undoubtedly the returns of this question made the eyebrows of certain conservative parents and alumni move right up to their scalps. A total of 179 students declared themselves to be Socialists, while 162 held fast to the Republican banner, and 40 admitted Democratic sympathies. Of the 162 Republicans, 102 came from the freshman and sophomore classes, and 25 of the 40 Democrats were members of the same two lower classes. The percentage of Socialists among the juniors and seniors was the highest. What does this liberal trend on the part of our students, particularly the upper-classmen, mean?

Didn't someone say that this is a conservative college? Is not Middlebury supposed to be guarded by the solid New England hills from the "new-fangled ideas that are corrupting our youth"? Can this Middlebury place be a hot-house for budding Bosheviki? To any fearful parent or apprehensive alumnus who may picture our peaceful campus as being over-run by wild-eyed, dangerous fanatics who clamor for the immediate destruction of everthing in general while perched precariously on soap-boxes, we offer complete assurance; conditions here are far from that. Instead, we have a student body that has indicated that it is learning to think for itself, and is quietly acquiring intellectual independance.

This is not the place for us to pass any judgement upon the socialist economy; we are hardly qualified to do so. We do not even attempt to hazard an opinion as to whether those who declared themselves as subscribing to the socialist beliefs are right or wrong. The significant feature of the situation lies in the fact that these students, for the most part, have broken away from political inheritances that are usually handed down from generation to generation without question. When this is going on, America need worry less for its future; its youth is thinking, and it will act the wiser for its thought.

The significance of the fact that the members of the upper classes showed a far greater tendency than their younger fellow-students to follow the liberal trend is evident. The lower-classmen have not yet found the ability to think without being influenced by the political philosophies of their fathers. This does not mean that Middlebury has endeavored to convert students to new political theories; anyone who could believe this would need be completely misinformed about our college. What has happened to the upper-classmen who have deserted the parties of their fathers is simple: they have merely come into more complete contact with the truth about matters of government, and have been able to resolve in their own minds the problems of to-day. The enlarging of the intellectual horizon of the upper-classmen has resulted in their independence of thought.

We need not fear that our student body will go too far in radicalism. Most of the students have in their backgrounds a foundation that is too steady to allow them to be swept away by extremes. Tempered by this natural inheritance, their openminded liberalism is a healthy sign.

A SUGGESTION

Almost every time that an examination is given to students it is accompanied by a plea from the professor asking that the questions be read carefully and completely before any effort is made to answer them. Failure to follow this advice is one of the chief reasons for low grades in examinations; too often the student merely glances at the question and then proceeds to attempt an answer without really understanding the question asked.

To remedy this condition, we suggest that a fifteen minute period be given at the start of each final examination. for the sole purpose of having the students read the question paper and take notes. After this short reading period, the answer sheets could be distributed, and the student could begin to write his answers. The wiser students will take sufficient time, under any circumstances, to understand the questions before plunging into the business of answering them, but the fifteen minute period suggested would help curb the undue haste that others cannot control. We hope that this suggestion will be considered for the impending finals.

Poking About

In the early years of the nineteenth century, when Middlebury was but an infant institution, her founders cherished many speculations as to what her future might be. Only five years after her formal founding, Daniel Chipman organized a law department and in 1910, just four years later, the corporation voted to establish a medical department here, electing a professor of Anatomy, Surgery, and the Theory and Practice of Physick.

Dr. Nathan Smith of Dartmouth, who had recently resigned from "a settee of professorships", as Oliver Wendell Holmes phrased it, was unanimously chosen. He was the most popular medical teacher in this section of the country and Middlebury considered herself very fortunate in her choice. But this plan was destined to fail, for the conditions at Hanover which had necessitated Dr. Smith's resignation were ameliorated and he agreed to return to his former position. Some years later he again removed, this time to Yale.

Had the proposal succeeded, Middlebury would have been one of the few colleges in the United States maintaining departments of both medicine and law.

Not long after, following the establishment of class rooms and a library in Painter hall, a department of chemistry was created and Dr. Ruben Mussey, prominent in early American medical education and a pupil of Dr. Smith's, became lecturer for one summer.

Many students during the year 1818 attended courses at the Castleton Medical Academy which had received its charter but had no power to grant degrees. A petition was made to the college to annex the Castleton school to Middlebury, and after much deliberation the plan was adopted. The course of study was so arranged that degrees were conferred, signed by the professors at Castleton and by the president of the college. Each candidate for a degree was required "to read in the College Chapel or Philosophy Room a dissertation on some subject connected with the healing art, and defend the principles which it contained". The public examination was held the day before commencement. During the seven years of affiliation, Middlebury conferred 137 course degrees of doctor of medicine, and fifteen honorary titles.

There was also a third connection with another medical school, but this relationship was very soon broken. Although Middlebury never became prominent as a medical college, by her affiliations with newly-established medical academies she gave them new life, and in that way she contributed a great deal to the early history of American medicine.

Shreds and Patches

The next issue of the CAMPUS closes one more cycle of Middlebury. When the present senior class leaves, the college will either nose-dive plumb to the dogs, according to the general '34 belief; or will instantly rise to unhampered heights, as the boys and girls of '35, '36, and '37 have it. Personally, we have our doubts.

Anyway, it'll be fun counting the dormitories, lecture halls and gymnasia presented to the college in the next five years by the alumni-elect. Lots of fun.

From any viewpoint, it seems a most fitting curtain call, this three-day party the seniors give the college each year. For the sentimentalists, it means an ideal glimpse of the campus to take away with them—for the hardened realists, senior week is just a mild form of recompense for a lot of perspiration and disappointment. Taken either way, it's one of the swellest bits Middlebury has to offer.

This business of faculty-fraternity ball games is something else pretty unique on this campus. We can't think of any other situation where the boys and the profs have a chance to even up their private scores so openly. Take the case of a prof on third base—playing a runner, he can calmly sit down on the guy, and it's all in the game. Again, it's the height of something, the way a student can coyly strike out his most troublesome instructor, with nothing but a subterranean snicker. Seems to us, this sort of thing rates more publicity, and regular catalog space.

While comprehensives are holding their awful sway over the campus we hear of self-imposed hermitages in various dorms. Take the Chateau, frixample, where four gals locked themselves up in one room with seven complete libraries and encyclopediae, and forsook the world. To be consistent, we imagine they donned burlap and were fed through a wicket. No pun, please!

We slipped up, last week, when we failed to credit the annual photography expedition of the college editor's sponsorship. We're told no archeological trip into the Gobi ever proceeded with more efficiency than that bunch. Hiking, wading, fishing, swimming—it's all in the official record by this time, and the resulting flood of applications for admissions is expected any day now.

Life is just one messy compensation after another, and now that Miami weather and Beverly Hills atmosphere have finally reached these wilds, along come hordes of mosquitos. We devoutly wish the darn things would take one big mouthful and let it go at that.

We're politely curious as to how the local cinema emporium is able to acquire such absolutely putrid comedies. Supporting a consistently good feature program comes the most vacuous of short subjects, ranging from Hearst's preparedness propaganda through Susabella Marigold telling how she sings so well, to a quartette of mental degenerates using up dollars and dollars worth of custard pie and Hollywood cocktails. It's all pretty discouraging, especially when you find how the management is assigned his reels.

While we are in the crusading mood it might be well to mention the flag which waves in solitary seclusion on on the reconditioned pine tree beside chapel. (or haven't you ever noticed it?) We are proud of our venerable institution and all that goes with it, but from the looks of things it might be well to retire the ancient bit of bunting on an old age pension.

Despite the wide spread alarm in regard to the unerving invasion of our fair campi by the alleged "June bugs" this department announces with pleasure that by intensive research in collaberation with the biology department it has been found that the so called June bugs are really Ma ybeetles and are arriving on schedule. Therefore all you folksies who have been spending sleepless nights worrying about this apparent violation of the laws of nature, may banish that fear from your minds, and concentrate on that old debbil, final exams.

An unknown statistician has discovered that the acme of perfection in the field of procrastination has been achieved by the average college student. This reaches its peak around final exams. The explanation advanced is that after eight months of inaction and never doing tomorrow what can be done the day after, the state is reached when time is regarded as being endless, and do we get fooled.

Before many moons, literally, some bright young chappie is going to wake up to the possibilities of Passion Puddle and Chipman Hill as concessions. He'll put in dime turnstiles and support the college after the first couple nights.

Wheaton President Is Chapel Speaker

Dr. E. J. Park Says, "It Is Good for Us to Be Here," At Final Vespers Service

Dr. E. J. Park, president of Wheaton college, speaking at vespers Sunday, took as his text, "It is good for us to be here."

The speaker characterized the present age as one in which everybody is where he is merely in preparation to get somewhere else.

"The modern spirit," he said, "is exemplified by the question: where do we go from here? Many people are unhappy in their futile existence but they struggle to live. If there is little in life for them, why do they wish to go on living?"

President Park answered this question by saying that everyone is living in hopes that some day he will meet an experience that will be so thrilling, and so worthwhile that it will make up for all the previous drab ones. "Although people may wait, interesting experiences never present themselves in life but are always interactions between happenings and personalities and if you are a drab person you may look forward to nothing but drab experiences."

As an illustration of this fact Dr. Park told of the man who was unemployed but who said he was waiting for something to come along which would be "commesurate with his powers." That was twenty-five years ago and he is still waiting.

"You must be charged," said Dr. Park, "with some knowledge, some skill in order to draw forth the clash of a new experience. This thrill can only be obtained by real personality, seeking and giving; it can not be found by a sophisticated front or an affectionate manner.

"Your inner life," continued the speaker, "is a mirror of the way you do things. Your religion is what you are after in life; it cannot be concealed. With real religion, goes good spirit and kindliness, and through them we come to value less the dull veneer known as a good time. Life is more subtle than that-the great thrill is in living and having experiences every day.

"We should come to college to catch the thrill of living," Dr. Park concluded. "It is good for us to be here if only to imbibe the atmosphere of those who have lived before. Through them, we can get inside the picture of life to see things as they are-beautiful and fine If we can gain some of their insight, a truly great experience will come to us."

Norwich Students View Junior Play

Guidon Compares "Outward Bound" Performances at Middlebury and Northfield

The Pegasus Players, Norwich university's student dramatic organization, viewed the Middlebury presentation of the play "Outward Bound," given as part of the junior week program May 8 and 9. The Norwich Guidon, student publication, contains in its issue of May 18 an interesting reaction to the Middlebury presentation by the Pegasus players, who gave the same play as their junior week offering. The Norwich actors were the guests of the Dramatic department of this college.

Quotations from the Guidon follow; we have no knowledge, unfortunately of the merits of the Norwich performance, and we are unfamiliar with the personalities mentioned, but the comment is none the less interesting as a comparison.

The Guidon article states:

"The play was as much of a success with them as its seems to have been here and the Pegasus Players offer hearty congratulations to them on their perfect selection of a cast and the talent and ability exhibited by each player. Quite naturally we feel that our presentation was superior in certain characters considering the difficulties we had to overcome; particularly that of men in women's parts as well as the other curricula activities which prevented intensive rehearsals.

"The Cadets playing female roles offered as much in the way of acting as the Middlebury co-eds but outside of that we must admit that a natural auburn-haired young lady can outdo our Ripley in impersonation of a harlot and social climber. And then again, it's much easier for a young brown-eyed lassie to inspire love in a suitor and direct lovewords and looks at him than it is for Tut to imagine himself in her place and act accordingly. Despite this advantage we feel that they did not noticably surpass our female leads. Izzy Leonard's natural brogue and shape (plus padding) were an advantage on our side and it seemed that our interpretation of the character was different than Midd's. They made her up as a sweet little old lady, whereas we made the fact that she was from the slums more prominent.

"Brackett's part, that of the perpetual drunk, was a bit more elaborate on the alcoholic effects in the Middlebury presentation. However, the elaboration wasn't necessary, we feel, in our case. Rev. Duke was pictured younger; but played the part as well as Director Baker here. Lingley, of Lingley Smith, was much the same as our Steve, and did an excellent job of being the hard business man. Henry of Midd. and Robbie were quite similar, but in their presentation he was more of the timid type, again showing a difference in the creative ideas of directors. Scrubby, played by Humphries here, was portrayed by their Scrubby as the typical waiter with his monotone and expressionless visage which seemed to add to the impression of Death aboard. "Podger" Quinn and Midd's "Examiner at the Pearly Gates" were as much alike as the proverbial Mike and Ike, and both turned in excellent representations of the kind, congenial, parson, friend and consoler of one and all."

Panther Team Will Play Three Games

Nine Will Meet St. Lawrence And St. Michael's, Closing Season With Norwich Tilt

The Panther nine will engage in three more encounters to wind up the 1934 diamond season. The Blue and White will meet St. Lawrence university at Porter field Friday, Norwich university, May 30 on the cadets' diamond, and the St. Michael's contenders here June 9.

Middlebury has chalked up three victories and eight defeats in a season featured by spasmodic brilliance and erratic performances. Friday the Panthers will meet St. Lawrence in an attempt to regain their winning stride. The Laurentians have made a very good showing this season, last week shading a Colgate nine 5-4, to garner their sixth win out of ten starts.

The Middmen yet have two games in which to make their last bid for the state title. Vermont practically clinched the conference title Saturday by eking out a victory over Norwich, winning by the narrow margin 6-5, after a twelve inning battle with the Cadets. The Panthers only chance of taking first in the league rests in the hope that they win the remaining two encounters.

Norwich will entertain the Blue and White contenders Wednesday at Sabine field. The Cadets stand fourth in the conference race having won only one game, and suffered four defeats. Middlebury hopes to repeat the performance of May 12 when the Panther downed the Cadets by a 7-3 tally.

The Panther nine closes its season Saturday, June 9 on Porter field, meeting St. Michael's college. The Mikemen are at present tied for second with the Blue and White in the conference race. In their concluding encounter the Middmen hope to avenge the 10-8 defeat which the Purple team handed them earlier in the season at Winooski Park.

Netmen Drop Springfield Contest But Tie Vermont

The Middlebury varsity netmen bowed to Springfield college by a 6-3 score and tied Vermont's Green and Gold delegation 3-3 on the Hepburn courts last week.

In Thursday's match the strong Baystate team easily prevailed over the Panthers. In the singles Hughes of Springfield defeated Flagg 6-2, 6-3; Parks overcame LaForce 7-5, 3-6, 8-6; Thompson took Tierney 6-4, 6-3; Spring scored on Brown's forfeit. However, Rudd rallied to defeat Rupp 6-4. 5-7, 6-4 and Holmes nosed out Muller 6-3, 1-6, 6-4.

Hughes and Parks of Springfield, runners-up in the New England Intercollegiate tennis matches held at Newton Mass., teamed up to beat Flagg and Weatherhead 6-2, 6-3. Rudd and LaForce took Thompson and Rupp 6-3, 6-3. However, Holmes and Tierney bowed to Spring and Muller 6-4, 7-5.

Saturday featured a hotly contested engagement with the University of Vermont. Flagg and Rudd won their single matches for Middlebury, Flagg downing Myers 6-3, 6-4 and Rudd defeating Gray 6-4, 7-5. The visitors evened matters, Wilson nosing out LaForce 3-6, 7-5, 6-0 and Costello taking Holmes 6-4, 3-6, 6-4. Neither team was able to break the deadlock in the doubles. Wilson and Myers paired to defeat Flagg and Brown 6-2, 6-2. However, LaForce and Rudd joined to down the combination of Gray and Costello by the same scores.

Blue and White Netmen to Encounter Vermont Tennis team This afternoon

The Panther tennis team will meet the U. V. M. netmen on the Hepburn courts this afternoon in a nine match encounter. Captain Flagg will play number one singles, with Rudd, LaForce, Tierney, Holmes, and Brown backing him up in that order.

Friday afternoon the team will play hosts to Tufts in another nine match meet, with the same singles lineup representing Middlebury.

KDR Wins Softball Title With 2-1 Victory Over CP

The Kappa Delta Rho ten captured the intramural soft ball title by virtue of a 2-1 victory over Chi Psi Friday afternoon.

Superb fielding on the part of KDR coupled with the deceptive twirling of Reid for Chi Psi resulted in the most thrilling contest of the season.

Reid was slow in getting into shape and walked two men in the first inning. One of them eventually crossed the plate on a sacrifice to make the score 1-0 in KDR's favor. There was no scoring after that on the part of either team until the last inning. Reid held the Ranchmen to three hits while Kappa Delta Rho managed to turn the majority of the Chi Psi smashes into outs. In the first of the seventh Kelly of Chi Psi, with two men on and two outs smashed out a clean hit that drove in one run tying the score. The Southstreeters in the last of the seventh managed to get two men on and with one out Howard banged out a long hit to clinch the game and tournament.

CONFERENCE MEET WILL BE SATURDAY

N. I. C. A. A. Boehm and Prochazka are the outstanding middle distance men for Middlebury, while Barter and Soule are entered for Norwich. Forbush is favored to win the 880 run with Levine, Andress, and D. White, last years state half-miler contending for the Green and Gold. King and Fitch will supplement Barter for Norwich.

The mile run should be captured by Middlebury's MacFadyen, and Seymour should also place for the Blue and White. Woodruff, who won the event last year in 4 minutes, 37. 5 seconds will race for Vermont. King and Wright are Norwich's best bets in the mile and two mile. The longer run should be a thriller with Cliff Harwood of Vermont, who took second at Worcester, fighting it out with Middlebury's Sears. Twitchell will second Harwood, and Brooker will team with Sears.

In the 120 yd. high hurdles Middlebury's hopes are pinned on Sweet and Martin possibly aided by Mathewson and MacLean. Connor and Syme of Vermont have turned in excellent times in the high barriers while Stalker of Norwich is a possible winner. Mathewson is expected to have little difficulty in taking the 220-yd. low hurdles for the Panthers.

In the field events, the broad jump finds Cady of Middlebury favored for first place with the support of Boehm and Williams. Joe Delfausse has done 21 feet, 9 inches in this event, however, with Jezukawicz not far behind.

Smith of Norwich won both the high jump and pole vault in last season's meet. In the high jump the versatile Joe Delfausse and Crane threaten for Vermont. Shea, Bernardini, and Sweet should capture several points for Middlebury while Smith, Nealy and and Wilbur furnished Norwich's opposition. Smith of Norwich should push Hoffman in the pole vault ,having tied for third place in the Eastern Intercollegiate meet with a clearance of 11 ft. Jezukawicz, Collins and Sowka are outstanding for the Green and Gold.

Norwich should score heavily in the weight events. Maguire won the shot and discus in the Eastern Intercollegiate two years ago and this season took the discus with a heave of 124 feet, 10 1-2 inches and scored a third place in the shot put. It would not be surprising to see him win these two events and possibly the hammer throw in the coming meet. His teammate, Lemaire, is also handy with the weights. Ricco, Lombardy, LaBouchere and Evans will put the shot for the Blue and White with Cook and Rollie Delfausse defending Vermont. The discus finds Bishop of Norwich seconding Maguire and Lemaire. Lombardy, Evans, Whitney and Sweet hold Middlebury's chances with Cook again entered for the Catamount. Watson is Midd's best in the hammer throw and will be aided by Whitney and Harris.

Lovell, Williams and Erkkila should tally needed points for the Blue and White in the javelin throw against Popowski, Perry and Hewatt of Norwich and Sowka of Vermont.

Track Team Loses To Montreal AAA

Panther Runners Win Most Events But Are Beaten by Two Points in Dual Meet

The Winged Wheelers of the Montreal A. A. A. won their first victory over the Middlebury Panther when they downed the Blue and White track team by a 64-62 score at Montreal on Wednesday.

Middlebury swept six first places and tied for another but a scarcity of other points was the deciding factor. MacFadyen turned in the best Blue and White performance when he won the mile by a good sixty yards setting a new college record of 4:29. The old record of 4:34 had stood for fifteen years, being set by Frederick L. Jones '19. Warral of Montreal was high man of the meet with thirteen points garnered with firsts in the high hurdles and the high jump and a second in the low hurdles. Hoxie was high scorer for the Panther with victories in both the 220 and 100 yard dashes.

Mathewson continued his sterling performance in the low barrier event when he won easily in 26.8 seconds, the slowness in time being due to the fact that the race was run on a curve. In the 880 Forbush and Wade pulled away from the rest of the field on the last lap but the latter put on a final sprint that won for him easily by ten yards. Lombardy and Cady won Blue and White victories in the discus and broad jump respectively while Middlebury completely swept the javelin throw with Williams beating out Captain Lovell for the first position.

Panther Varsity Nine Loses Four Contests on Annual Boston Tour

Making its annual tour to Boston and vicinity, the Panther nine dropped games to Brown, Tufts, Boston college and Northeastern. The Bruins swamped the Middmen 11-1, Tufts shut out Coach Nelson's charges 4-0, and the Eagles overwhelmed the Blue and White aggregation 17-3. The battle with the Huskies was the closest, the final score being 11-10.

The hopes of the Middlebury team were small from the start. They left with a serious lack of pitchers, this deficiency being so great that Hoehn, who usually holds down first, had to hurl a complete game. With Guild, Kingsley and Anderson unable to make the trip, Barker playing with an injured finger, and Captain Stefaniak forced to return to Middlebury after the Tufts game, this lack of hurlers cost the Panther all chance of a successful trip.

These obstacles seemed to affect the spirit of the team. The four games were characterized by very spotty playing, and a lack of snap and pep in the club. In every game the opposition's chances were increased by errors and the usual Panther batting ability was noticeable by its absence during most of the tour.

Brown 11-Middlebury 1

Opposing Brown Wednesday, the Blue and White team displayed some particularly listless ball playing and were pounced upon in the first inning to the tune of five runs. Stefaniak, who started, yielded seven runs before he was sent to the showers in the third. He was replaced by Herbert, who also found the Bruin sluggers too much for him and had three chalked up against him in the sixth inning and one more in the eighth. Middlebury's only run was made by Bakey in the sixth when he singled and then managed to score on a wild throw by the Brown pitcher.

Tufts 4 - Middlebury 0

In the Tufts game the Panthers showed a considerable tightening up, and a better brand of ball was played than against the Bruins. Stefaniak pitched faultless ball and was well supported. The opposition secured six hits to Middlebury's five, but the home team bunched their safeties in one inning and sewed up the game.

Boston College 17—Middlebury 3

Facing the Eagles Friday, the Blue and White nine found itself out of pitchers and Hoehn had to try his luck on the mound. The Boston club presented an assortment of some of the heaviest hitters in the East and scored well. Added to this, Calahan, Eagle twirler, clamped down and limited the Panther batters to six hits and three counters. Boston had little trouble in scoring in every inning except the sixth. Their best was done in the second and eighth. In each they drove in four runs.

Northeastern 11 - Middlebury 10

The Panthers played their best game of the trip against the strong Northeastern team. In the first inning Bakey smashed out a home run, and three singles followed, driving the Husky hurler Kihs from the box. The first ball of the new pitcher, Gillis, was slammed out for a two bagger by Phinney, and three more runs were chalked up by the Middmen before they were retired.

The Huskies scored their first run in the third on errors, and then a furious hitting barrage tied the score in the sixth frame. Six more were driven in by Northeastern during the next inning placing the Panthers one run behind. The Blue and White scored five runs on two hits in the eighth with Northeastern blowing up and turning in a flock of errors. The battle ended with Middlebury unable to put over the tying run.
